are more beautiful than ever. Using the garden hose and two cinder blocks, DWP arranged a geyser of water in the middle of the park -- it literally stopped traffic. What a wonderful thing it will be when we get the fountain re-installed in the park.

Dropped off DWP and then returned here; took a 30-mile drive through the countryside -- Elders Lake Estates - South Gibson + around Elk Mountain -- frequently I was on roads on which I had never been before. A beautiful ride in the late-afternoon/early evening through farmlands + forests: orange day lilies, ^{pink} musk, roses; farmers buying; sparrow hawk on the utility tower.

Returned here before dark + dined regally on my own swiss chard + sea shell macaroni + red beans + chick peas + wheat. Delicious.

- ordered a copy of my Ph.D. dissertation from University Microfilms in Ann Arbor, MI -- $5.00; my dissertation's order number is 75-1746, 355 pages (SNP Check #438)
- decided to purchase a hive of bees from Endless Mountain Apiaries, Montrose, PA (the people from whom I bought some buckwheat^{honey} at the Circle Flea Market last Sunday; will place the order tomorrow; I wrote out the check to Soni -- #437 for $50; will DWP want to go along?)
- My Sansevieria in bloom -- the entire church is filled with its heady hyacinth-like fragrance.

Mr. Douglas Rose
Endless Mountain Apiaries
Montrose, PA 18801

Dear Mr. Rose:

I talked with you on 7/7/85 at the Circle Flea Market about acquiring a hive of honey bees.

I looked for you today there but was unable to find you -- perhaps you were not there?

at any rate, the answer is: yes, I would like to purchase a hive of honey bees.

How do we proceed? I live in Elders Lake, Susquehanna County. My telephone number is 679-2979.

Sincerely,

S. ROBERT POWELL

- took bread dough to Gref course at 9 AM. and shaped loaves; DWP + I went to Circle Flea Market, where I looked for -- but did not find -- the Endless Mountain Apiary people; exchanged the defective pair of rubber kitchen gloves that I purchased last week for $1.00; today I bought a beautiful bunch of fresh dill for 50¢ + also fifty plain business-size envelopes for 50¢ + DWP bought some old Christmas tree ornaments,
